

Impact of Social Media in Youth

Every small or big thing has its own advantages and disadvantages. Social media also has both positive and negative sides. Firstly, it has been a blessing to youths in many ways. Social media has made people smarter as we can learn about any stuff online and enhance our knowledge regarding the particular topic. We face a lot of queries every day and social media allows us to clear all our doubts. We can even ask the questions and share our opinions with each other online. This way of learning is effective and it also helps us to interact with a lot of people. Moreover, social media has contributed emotionally too as people living miles away can connect with each other very easily. In addition, social media has been a great platform for the youths to show their talent in front of the world. Youths are showing their skills and are getting praised too. This has not only increased their confidence but also helped them to rise and shine. Hence, these are the reasons which show that social media has a positive impact on youths. On the other hand, social media has also been a curse to youths. Social media is a platform which has so much negative information. A lot of youth have engaged themselves in bad activities such as bullying and judging others badly. Along with this, hacking others' accounts and abusing people have also been a serious issue nowadays. Such activities have led some innocents to experience a lot of stress. Furthermore, social media has been a platform where people are competing with each other in terms of likes and comments. Many youths even compare the negative part of their life with the positive part of others and feel insecure. Nowadays, enjoying with loved ones and having quality time together is not as important as posting pictures. These few cases show the negative side of social media. Therefore, social media impacts youth both positively and negatively.
